Class Poem

The future calls to us
As up the stairs we climb,
Opportunity's hands outstretched
As onward we go through time.

We face the years ahead
With courage in our souls;
We'll stand upright and firm
To reach for higher goals.

Our memories are vast,
And that we can't deny;
Of knowledge and of fun,
Our thoughts will never die.

Our high school days are o'er,
It's time to say good-bye;
We'll not forget our friends
At dear old Union High.

— by SHEILA WHITNEY.

GALLOPING GHOST

Class History

The GOOD SHIP '57 set sail with a fair breeze and a crew of forty little mariners, with Mrs. Norton as captain and Mrs. Huse as first mate. Although we have encountered both fair and stormy weather for twelve treacherous years, we have finally reached our destination with sixteen of our original crew.

Under the command of Mrs. Norton, we used to gallop around the deck on little brooms while singing a song about a hobby horse. We read the adventures of Dick, Jane and baby Sally and answered to the call of "Little Yellow Bird."

We sailed along smoothly to the second port and exchanged our captain for Miss Kinville. It is remembered that at times the weather became so rough that she resorted to chewing her glasses so strenuously that the result was broken bows. In this year we threw over our hook and pulled in Patty Battles, Julie Milo, Monte Tabor, Donna Manning, Ronnie Howard and Arthur Boright. Our new captain tried to reform Ronnie Howard of biting his nails by making him wear gloves. Others of us were reformed by the sign "BABY" boldly written on our backs. It was here that Wanda grieved to the extent of tears over her failure to carve an animal from soap.

At port number three, our captain was again exchanged for Mrs. Stokes, who ruled with an iron hand. She kept us posted on world and town affairs as well as drilling the multiplication tables into our little brains. We seemed to remember Ray Hedding getting badly shaken, but not by the rough sea. It was in this catch that we netted Liz Parker and Sam Richards.

We continued along to the fourth port where Miss Walbridge took over the helm. This year we pulled Christina Bugbee, Pauline Connolly, and Joseph Johnson aboard. We really learned our geography here and had much fun playing map guessing games. We had a small mutiny aboard this year. It seems that while playing prisoners' base, Carol Dustin's team had captured Sheila. Wanda's team tried to get her back and this brought about a real hairpulling battle. Carol hates to admit that Wanda was very proud of her victory since Carol was a bit larger.

We cruised along to the fifth port and took on Mrs. Menard as captain. It was here that Carol Stockfisch joined our crew. We memorized "The Barefoot Boy" and had our first taste of show business when we presented "Johnny Appleseed."

In all our glory, we sailed into port six where Miss Marshall was our commander. We were very proud to elect our first class officers in this year. They were: president, Larry Monroe; vice-president, Wanda Cox; treasurer, Monte Tabor; secretary, Ronnie Howard.

GALLOPING GHOST

We sold candy bars to make money. Our crew was so large and rugged that we were forced to use a life boat which resembled Beanville school, with Mrs. Rowe as captain of it. We swapped ships every once in a while so that we all experienced this life boat. Miss Marshall tried to make artists of us while Mrs. Rowe taught us about the birds and the wild flowers.

Our ship navigated on to junior high and we pulled aboard Forrest Manning, Melissa Hockman, Susan Hesaltine and Marilyn Benoir. We took on Mrs. Birchard as captain and Miss Strong as first mate. Our class president was Patty Battles. Our Student Council members were Elizabeth Parker and Arthur Boright. This year we won the magazine drive and gained "Hamburg," a stuffed dog, who has been the mascot on deck ever since. We also wrote letters to some prominent persons in the United States, who answered with suggestions and advice for our treasure chest. This year was the first time we ventured further than the playground for our class picnic. A good time was spent at Bear Hill State Forest Park.

As we maneuvered along to the next port — number eight, Miss Hoffnagle took over our ship and we glided along smoothly with the assistance of Miss Marshall who helped with science and also tried to help us learn about historians' voyages. This year we chose for our president, Neil Webster, and vice-president, Patty Battles. Our Student Council members were Ronnie Howard and Wanda Cox. We were all surprised one day when Miss Hoffnagle received a box of chocolates and decided to share them with her crew. She passed out the top layer; but the second layer proved to be nothing but stones and was not very tasty.

Ah! Our first glimpse of land! We threw our net and what a catch! We gained Gordon Small, Ray Chase, Ronnie Greenwood, Bob Braley, Virginia Upham, Jackie Maloney, Volney Blodgett, Linda Chadwick, Phyllis Brassard, Martha Jewett, Rita Cady, Lillian Salls, Ethel Hurlburt, Evangeline Sherman, Gerry Tabor Davis, and Carl Capron, who have proved to be great crewmen and an asset to our crew. We were put under the supervision of Miss Johnson and Mr. Gaidys. We earned some money by having food sales (sails). This year we won second prize for our Halloween float, which was a graveyard scene. Our carnival play, "Make Room For Rodney," also won second place.

As first mates aboard ship during our sophomore port we had Mr. Streeter and Mrs. Earle. We received our first real pep talk from Mr. Streeter. We chose as our president, Ronald Howard; as our vice-president, Gene Shapiro; our treasurer, Neil Webster; and our secretary, Linda Chadwick. Our Student Council members were Sheila Whitney and Ronald Greenwood. Again our carnival play, "Life of The Party," won second place. This was the year of parties and Liz Parker started them off with a pajama party, which was a howling success.

At our junior port, we drew Mr. Parker and Miss Farino as our commanders. The male members of our crew had a wonderful time hiding Mr. Parker's belongings in very difficult places. Poor Mr. Parker never did find the bell again! We also abused "Happy Birthday" 'til we lost the privilege of singing it. Dancing school this year was a big success and we had some hilarious times in the home ec. kitchen. Our class president was Bill Dupras; vice-president, Ronnie Howard; secretary, Ronnie Greenwood; and treasurer, Liz Parker. Our carnival play was "The Monkey's Paw," which took third place.

At last! We sailed into a new harbor, Braintree - Randolph Union High School, with Mrs. Perry and Mr. Currier in command. With our new walls, we worked especially hard to reach land. We sold Christmas cards, banners, and candy and in the fall we put on a turkey supper. Every crewman worked like a little beaver to earn enough money to go to New York City. Our senior play, "Off The Track," was most successful.

Here we are, land just ahead, and all we must do is wade ashore to a future life. We'll always remember our teachers who did so very much for us and our fond school days.

Activities

The Student Council is the governing body of Braintree - Randolph Union High School. There are fifteen members in the council including the class presidents; a boy and a girl representative from each class; a council president, who is always a senior; the principal; and a faculty advisor.

It is the duty of the council to solve problems confronting the students, besides sponsoring the annual dramatics, sports, debating, Galloping Ghost Gazette, and many other activities. Among the activities this year were the magazine drive, polio drive, several assemblies, the Dedication Dance, the Safety Education Committee, and Courtesy Week. The council also sponsored a student to go to the United Nations Assembly in New York.

This year the debating team participated in 93 separate debates. Out of these the team had 36 wins and 50 losses and there were debates in which there was no decision. The Braintree - Randolph Union High School novice team placed first in the state novice tournament, while the varsity was third in the varsity tournament. The topic this year was, "Resolved That the Federal Government Should Adopt the Basic Principles of the Brannon Plan." Several of the debaters gave an exhibition debate before the Woman's Club. The graduating seniors are Sheila Whitney and Forrest Manning.

The Building Patrol is made up of senior girls who volunteer to help with school duties. Their advisor this year was Mrs. Perry, and Alice Battles was elected captain with the duty of supervising the girls and making sure they were always at their post. The duties of the girls were to keep order in the halls and stairs, and to help in the principal's office.

Dramatics this year began with the play, given by the seniors, called "Off The Track," which was directed by Miss Bates.

The club for dramatics chose a new name, after many suggestions, and is now known as "The Hollywooders." "The Hollywooders" put on two plays in assembly for the entertainment of the students.

Braintree - Randolph Union High School entered the District One-Act Play Contest with a drama, "Mooncalf Mugford."

The carnival plays included: "If Girls Asked Boys For Dates," a comedy put on by the freshmen; "Bobby Sox," a comedy by the sophomores; "One of Us," a mystery drama presented by the juniors; and "The Informer," a drama put on by the seniors.

The vocal department of Braintree - Randolph Union High School is under the direction of Miss Mesh. This year, four members of the chorus attended music festivals out of Vermont. Ann Webster and Suzanne Allen went to Atlantic City, New Jersey; and Elizabeth Parker and William Facto went to Plainville, Connecticut. As usual, members of the chorus attended the Vermont All-State and Winooski Valley Music Festivals.

Those members of the chorus interested in advance work, are given a chance to belong to the Monday Night Choir Group. At Christmas time the choir gave a concert at the Main Street school.

The chorus, choir, and music appreciation class presented "An Evening With American Music," which included a skit, "The Familiar Stranger."

The instrumental activities are under the direction of Mr. Ellis. The band and orchestra presented an instrumental concert in the Braintree-Randolph Union High School gymnasium. Members of both the band and orchestra represented Randolph at Winooski Valley and Vermont All-State Music Festivals.

The majorettes, directed by Mr. Ellis, participated in the joint band and orchestra concert. They were also seen marching at Winooski Valley and Vermont All-State Music Festivals.

In the literary field, Braintree - Randolph Union High School offers The Galloping Ghost Gazette, published monthly by the students, and The Yearbook, headed by a staff of seniors.

In the field of sports, one can participate in basketball, cheerleading, and baseball.

The cheerleading squad, consisting of six members and a substitute, cheered at approximately forty games and did an excellent job. The graduating seniors are Elizabeth Parker, captain; Sheila Whitney, Julie Milo, Wanda Cox, and William Facto. Those left to carry on the work next year are Ann Webster and Shirley Russell.

The baseball team, under the supervision of Mr. Streeter, has ten games scheduled this year. As this goes to press, the team has won one of its first three games. Members of the team graduating this year are; Ronald Howard, Raymond Hedding, Gene Shapiro, and Ronald Greenwood.

The B. - R. U. H. S. boys' basketball team, coached by Mr. Streeter, had a trying season this year, due to illness and subject difficulties; the varsity winning two games out of seventeen. The Junior Varsity won two of their scheduled games. Some of the more exciting games were those with South Royalton, and Bethel. Members of the team graduating this year are Ronald Howard, Raymond Hedding, and Eugene Shapiro.

The girls' basketball team, under the guidance of Mr. Folsom, had a successful season, winning twelve games out of sixteen. The exciting game was with Williamstown, which the girls defeated for the first time in over seven years. Other outstanding games were with Woodstock and Bethel. The team was made up completely of underclassmen, so there will be plenty of experience in next year's squad.
